

FIVE KNOWN DEAD IN MINE EXPLOSION

BLIZZARD CUTS MERCURY FROM 55 TO 23 DEGREES

PART OF OHIO IS PARALYZED BY HIGH GALE

Chicago Reports Five Deaths From Storm; Temperature To Rise Slowly.

The blizzard promised Ohio from the northwest arrived Tuesday night with high winds which rattled the windows and drove sleet and snow into every crack and crevice. The temperature dropped from 55 degrees on Tuesday to 23 Wednesday morning, and icy blasts of wind made the cold more penetrating.

Weather reports tell that the snow and ice will continue Wednesday, with slowly rising temperature Thursday.

Gardens of early vegetables, their planting inspired by the warm days of last week, showed the effects of the cold Wednesday.

In 1915, Circleville experienced a similar cold spell with snow and sleet.

The first hint of the storm came here Tuesday with a sudden downpour of round white sleet, which bounced on the pavements for a few moments, to be followed by intermittent showers.

Northwestern Ohio was the hardest hit. Toledo traffic was paralyzed for a brief time yesterday and many families were marooned in their homes when a stiff northeast wind sent the waves of Lake Erie booming over the breakwaters into low-lying residential districts.

Cleveland, too, suffered. A strong wind lashed its lakefront today and snow covered the ground causing innumerable minor traffic accidents. An especially strong wind was reported to be lashing Sandusky in that area.

CHICAGO, Mar. 26.—With five deaths reported and traffic badly paralyzed, Chicago today was attempting to dig itself out of one of the heaviest snowfalls in its history and the worst March blizzard on record here. And it was still snowing at 9:30 A. M.

At 7 A. M., a snowfall of 14.4 inches was officially recorded, exceeding by 1.8 inches the all-time record of 12.6 inches for March, and within one-half inch of the heaviest snowfall the city ever has known. In January, 1918, the official snowfall recorded was 14.9 inches. In December of this year, 14.8 inches of snow fell.

60-MILE WIND
C. A. Donnel, weather forecaster, predicted that the blizzard would last until noon, although the wind had abated after attaining a 60-mile an hour velocity yesterday.

While the major accidents which have marked some blizzards in the past were lacking, officials of the city's street railway system said the storm was the worst in history from the standpoint of derailments and minor accidents. Stalled passenger cars and automobiles stood motionless and cloaked in drifts in many parts of the city as workers on their way to the downtown district marched in Indian file along the tracks and narrow paths of the sidewalks.

While the full force of the storm centered in and around Chicago, the entire north central district felt the grip of the record blizzard. Many outlying districts were cut off from all communication, but reports filtering in from other parts of Illinois, as well as from Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and other nearby states, told of impassable highways and complete lack of transportation.

Dry Commissioner Tells W. C. T. U. Law In Ohio Is Success

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—"Prohibition is a success—it has saved more than $2,000,000,000—it has kept Ohio a dry state—Drinking has been reduced among every class—The dry law has driven out the old town drunks."

Those statements, which were the highlights of the speech of Prohibition Commissioner R. R. Beetham before a meeting of the state Women's Christian Temperance Union, are still being discussed by the group of women today.

"Prohibition is a success because it is an improvement over everything else of its kind ever attempted," the county leaders of the Women's dry organization heard Beetham say.

"The dry law," Beetham continued, "has reduced poverty and misery. Two-thirds of the money formerly spent for liquor, and that means more than $2,000,000,000, is now used for commodities and toward higher living standards."

"Prohibition has kept Ohio a dry state. By that I do not mean that we do not have bootleggers in Ohio, but I do mean that the predominant sentiment in Ohio is dry. "Drinking has been reduced among every class. Prohibition has driven the old town drunk from a thousand Ohio towns and villages and a drunk is a rare thing to see in Ohio now."

The executive committee of the W. C. T. U., which claims to have a membership of 45,000 women in Ohio, declared that it will raise a "defense" or "slush" fund, to defeat what was termed the increased efforts of "wet interests" to repeal the dry law. The fund, which will come from donations, is to be used when an emergency arises, it was explained.

Plans were also formulated for the monthly distribution of literature, which will point out the good effects of the prohibition amendment.

PETERS NAMES PICKAWAY-CO ENUMERATORS

Gaylord C. Peters of Lancaster, supervisor of the census in the 18th district, Wednesday announced his list of enumerators appointed for Pickaway-co.

The complete list in Circleville and in the townships follow: Circleville, Mrs. E. B. Elm, Mrs. Mary Campa Eagleson and Mrs. H. P. McChord.

Darby-twp; Hazel Ridgeway, Deer Creek-twp; Hoyt L. Ater, Harrison-twp, Archie M. Peters and Edward O. Addins, Jackson-twp, William F. Yaple, Madison-twp, Jacob Lewis LaRue.

Monroe-twp, Marie Walters, Muhlenberg-twp, George W. Winfough.

Perry-twp, Mrs. Fannie E. Kirk, Pickaway-twp, Edward C. Wilkins.

Salt Creek-twp, Carl C. Kreider, Scioto-twp, Vaughn B. Ditrick; one to be appointed.

Walnut-twp, Clyde S. Michael, Washington-twp, Ralph S. McCoy.

Wayne-twp, Charles H. Carmean. The actual date for starting the census-taking has been set for April 2.

FARM BUREAU AIDS
The Pickaway-co Farm Bureau has responded promptly to the call for help in sending out about 1,200 sample farm schedules. The idea in sending these samples is to have the farmer prepare these schedules in advance of the enumerator.

The exact ages of the children is important. In case of a child less than five years old, the ages should be given in completed months, expressed as twelfths of a year.

Thus the age of a child three months old should be entered as 3-12; a child seven months old as 7-12; a child one year and three months old as 1-3-12, etc. If a child is not yet a month old, enter the age as 0-12.

But note again that this question should be answered with reference to April 1. For instance, a child who is just a year old on April 5, 1930, should nevertheless be returned as 11-12, because that is its age in completed months of April 1.

The questions to be asked by the enumerator in the 1930 census of population, as announced today by William M. Steuart, Director Bureau of the Census, are as follows:

1. Relationship to head of family, including a statement as to the homemaker in each family.

2. Whether home is owned or rented.

3. Value of home, if owned, or monthly rental, if rented.

4. Radio set? ("Yes" or "No.")

5. Does this family live on a farm? ("Yes" or "No.")

6. Sex.

7. Color or race.

8. Age at last birthday.

9. Marital condition.

10. Age at first marriage. (For married persons only.)

11. Attended school or college any time since Sept. 1, 1929? ("Yes" or "No.")

12. Whether able to read and write? ("Yes" or "No.")

13. Place of birth of person. (State or country.)

14. Place of birth of person's father. (State or country.)

15. Place of birth of person's mother. (State or country.)

16. Mother tongue of each foreign-born person.

17. Year of immigration to the United States. (For foreign-born only.)

18. Whether naturalized. (For foreign-born only.)

19. Whether able to speak English. (For foreign-born only.)

20. Occupation of each gainful worker.

21. Industry in which employed.

22. Whether employer, employee, or working on own account.

23. Whether actually at work.

(For each person usually employed but returned as not at work, additional information will be secured on a special unemployment schedule.)

24. Whether a veteran of the United States military or naval forces; and for each veteran, in what war or expedition he served.

Miss Marian Hitler will enter Ohio University at Athens next Monday for the second term.

Girl Pilot Holds 3 Records at 18

CONGRATULATIONS FROM FRIENDS

Elinor Smith is the holder of three world's flying records—and she is only eighteen. In a few days she is going to take tests for a commercial pilot's license and when she passes she will be qualified to compete with men in every branch of aviation. She was only eight years old when she took her first air ride, and made her first solo flight four years ago. On January 13, 1929 she stayed in the air over Roosevelt Field, L. I., thirteen hours.

April, 1929 she set an endurance mark of 26 hours, 21 minutes and 32 seconds. Within a few days the records will credit to Miss Smith an altitude record of around five miles. The barograph which she carried to something between 30,000 and 32,000 feet is being celebrated.

J. GOEKE, DEM. LEADER, DIES

Former Congressman Taken at Home Near Lima, O., After Long Illness.

LIMA, Ohio, March 26.—J. Henry Goetze, aged 61, former congressman and Ohio democrat leader at the time of the famous Bull-Moose split in the Republican ranks in 1912, is dead at his home in Shawnee-twp, near here, today following an illness of several weeks. He died late last night.

After serving in the sixty-second congress, he became treasurer of the Democratic national congressional committee during the '94 elections. He was a delegate-at-large from Ohio to the Democratic national convention in 1912, which nominated President Wilson.

Besides being actively engaged in politics, Goetze was also a leader in the financial and commercial fields in this area. He was a director of the First National Bank at Wapakoneta and served on the board of directors of the Lima Trust company.

His widow and two daughters survive.

WARD, BRILL CASE ENDED

Jury Says Both Men Were Negligent Orders No Damages To Either.

A jury in common pleas court found both plaintiff and defendant guilty of negligence in the damage suit of Frank H. Ward against Scott W. Brill and ordered that neither be given any damages.

The suit was the outgrowth of a wreck on the Chillicothe-pk during a snow storm when each charged the other with negligence and asking damages.

The jury deliberated about one hour, leaving the jury box at 5:10 and returning at 6:10. Emanuel Dresbach was foreman of the jury. Barton Walters, and Miller Thompson and Dunbar represented the plaintiff and C. A. Weldon, and J. W. Deffenbach of Lancaster represented the defendant.

William G. Martin filed suit in common pleas court Wednesday against Elmer S. Wilson for $10,000 with seven per cent interest from June 22, 1929 and foreclosure of a mortgage on a promissory note. Answer date is April 26.

SIX ENTOMBED ALSO THOUGHT TO BE TAKEN

Rescuers Lend Every Effort To Reach Men Buried Under Tons of Coal.

ARNETTSVILLE, W. Va., Mar. 26.—Five men were known to have been killed and six other miners were entombed and also believed to have met death today when a local gas explosion wrecked the Crown mine of the Imperial Coal Company here.

Crown mine officials hurriedly organized rescue crews. Forty-six men, comrades of the entombed workers, started working in brief relays to make their way to the imprisoned men.

Fears were expressed that some of the men had been killed outright by the blast.

Two bodies were recovered after the blast. They were badly disfigured and burned. Identification was difficult.

They were tentatively identified as those of Joseph H. Livingston, 48, and D. M. Foster, 29.

Members of the rescue gang placed the bodies of the two miners in a recess in the tunnel and went forward with their attempts to reach the entombed miners.

BROUGHT TO SURFACE
The two bodies were to be brought to the surface later today. All efforts of the rescue crews were concentrated on reaching the nine men buried by the fall of thousands of tons of coal that followed the explosion.

The following list of the miners entombed was hastily compiled by officials of the Crown mine:

Charles Jacobs, 35;
Sisco France, 42;
Andrew Thompson, 39;
Frank Martin, 44;
Henry Willis, 39;
Adam Cull, 29;
William Thompson, 29;
Edward Groves, 48;
L. H. Harvey, 48.

OTHERS UNINJURED
Four hours after the blast hit go, Stanley Kendrew and Paul Taysa, who were at work in another section of the mine, came to the surface unhurt. They were amazed to learn that there had been an explosion. Neither knew the rumbling of the blast as it wrecked the workings.

Company officials said the explosion was a local blast of accumulated gas fumes which had become ignited.

Hope was expressed that the rescue gangs would reach the imprisoned men within three or four hours.

PITTSBURGH, March 26.—J. J. Forbes, director of the Mine Safety division of the Bureau of Mines, left by automobile for Arnettsville, W. Va., today soon after word of a mine disaster at the Crown mine of the Imperial Coal Company was flashed to the bureau offices here.

Forbes was accompanied by assistant director K. M. Marshall. A mine rescue car of the bureau of mines was enroute to Carnegie, near Pittsburgh, when word of the disaster reached Forbes and the latter sped south by automobile rather than wait for the car to be made up.

Forbes said he had no definite information of the extent of the blast.

"We only know that five men have been killed, two rescued and six are reported entombed," Forbes said.

League Moguls Make Drastic Rules Changes

TEAMS REDUCED; FOUR BALLS TO WALK; BAR BUNTING, WITH NUMEROUS OTHER CHANGES

Rules, and plenty of them, were changed by the managers of the Circleville recreation ball league at a meeting held in the Noecker garage E. Main-st Tuesday evening. Probably the most important rule change was the elimination of the tenth man on the team. Much argument ensued between several of the managers before a vote was called and elimination of the tenth man was settled. Several reasons were given for the change, the most important one voiced, was that since baseball has only nine men, why should recreation ball? Other rules changed were that it requires four balls to win free league called for only three, that the pitcher's box should be moved back to 35 feet, that all foul balls are strikes, whether caught or not, unless it be the third strike which must be held by the catcher, that no bunting should be permitted and that a ball which strikes in fair territory in the infield and rolls outside the baselines is a foul instead of a fair one as was the rule last year.

The managers decided to divide this year's umpires into ball and strike arbiters and base umpires. The man who starts calling strikes and balls will remain in that position and will not alternate with the base umpire. Many questions came up last summer because umpire was not stationed properly to see fair and foul balls which hit near the baseline.

Each team is to put a new ball in play at the start of each game. The individual teams are to furnish the balls and at the end of the season, money received from collections during the summer is to be divided between the eight

KONJOLA ENDED RHEUMATISM AND DREAD NEURITIS

New Medicine Banishes These Painful Ailments and Wins Praise of Youngstown Lady.

MRS. A. RICHARDS.

"For more than a year I suffered the awful torments of rheumatism and neuritis," said Mrs. A. Richards, 871 Marshall street, Youngstown. "The pains from these attacks settled in my joints and muscles. Those who have suffered from these ailments know what I went through. There were days at a time when it was impossible for me to walk. My nerves and stomach became weak and my general health had run down."

"It required but four bottles of Konjola to literally create a new world for me. Today I have no sign of either of these painful ailments. The suffering through which I passed seems like a bad dream. My nerves are now steady and strong and my stomach has again become normal. I have gained in weight, strength and energy and am in better health than I was before I became ill. I can never say enough for Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. —Adv.

VLEREBOME IN SECOND PLACE

George Vlerbome of Circleville, Muskingum forward, lacks only ten points of holding high honors for the Ohio Conference in the 1930 basketball season, according to a survey. While Vlerbome scored 213 points in his seventeen games, Capital University's giant center, Mechling, tallied 221 points in his eighteen games. It is possible but improbable that another player has scored more either Vlerbome or Mechling, but the recent survey did not disclose any such fact. Mechling was also Capital U's outstanding football player, playing tackle on the team.

The conference player which comes nearest to Vlerbome and Mechling is Ray Miller, the high scorer from Wooster. Miller tallied 170 points in Wooster's fourteen games. The scoring then falls off considerably and there is a group who scored around 135 points.

Harold Frye, of Akron U. scored 142, while Glenwright of Mt. Union, Hall of Akron, Haley of Heidelberg, Morgan of Hiram, and Raber of Mt. Union, follow above 130.

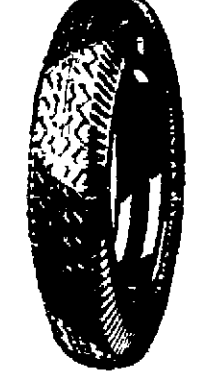

Taking into consideration that Capital did not play the same kind of schedule the Muskingum college team played, it is entirely probable that if they had Vlerbome would hold a neat edge over this Mechling lad who is well known to a number of Circleville court players.

TRAINING CAMP SHORTS

SAN ANTONIO, Mar. 26.—I move into action again today against the Brooklyn National League Club.

Weather conditions were rather favorable for a game today. The siege of rain was stopped by a distinct fall in temperature and a high wind, which the experts said would dry out the playing field.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Mar. 26.—A double-header with the New Orleans Pelicans was on tap today for the Cleveland Indians' squad. Regulars will oppose Regulars and Rookies will face Rookies.

Walter Miller, Joe Shaute, Pinky Shoffner and Ken Holloway, none of whom has appeared in any kind of game to date, were expected to get their chance on the mound for the Indians.

CLEARWATER, FLA., Mar. 26.—They gave Cy Moore a big hand today. Moore won a novel throwing contest in which the Robins' pitching staff took part, throwing 18 balls between two canvas dummies, hitting them seven times. Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn manager handed Moore $10 as a prize for showing the best control. Dazzy Vance and Buck Newsome tied for second place.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Mar. 26.—The six hit game pitched by Rookie George Bell against the Los Angeles Angels was the talk of the Chicago Cubs stronghold today.

Bell was put in yesterday's game to pitch only five rounds, but his work was so good he was allowed to hurl the entire game. Only three Angels moved as far as second base.

The Cubs won, 8 to 0 after Riggs Stephenson led off with a home run.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Mar. 26.—The Chicago White Sox today were reassured of their $50,000 investment in J. Smead Jolley, former coast league player.

Jolley poled a double to right center field in the ninth inning of yesterday's game with the San Antonio Indians to give the Sox a 13 to 12 victory.

Modern knights of industry have devices—the advertised trade-marks of their products. They must safeguard the reputation of these trade-marks to keep them worth while.

Advertising throws a powerful light on a trade-mark. If it proves worthy, it gains popularity and confidence. If it is shown to be unworthy, it quickly fails.

SHEEP SPECIALIST URGES CARE IN MARKETING WOOL

COLUMBUS, O.—Because wool prices are already low, many wool producers are unnecessarily sacrificing several cents to the pound of what they might receive for their product, simply because they are not using care in preparing it for market, says L. A. Kauffman, extension specialist in sheep husbandry for the Ohio State University here. Kauffman observes a tendency among the growers to slight their work when the price of the product is low anyhow, and thereby make their returns even smaller.

"Carelessness in the growing, handling and tying of wool is always evident when wool prices are low as they are now," says Kauffman.

"Thousands of pounds of reject wools, especially burry, seedy, chaffy and cotted wools, are offered for sale each year by Ohio wool growers. Many of these rejects could be made salable by more careful feeding and management of the flocks on the farms. Cleaning up fence corners and burry pastures would lessen the amount of such wool reaching the market. The lower value of such wools is due principally to the extra preparation which they require before they are manufactured. Extremely burry wools cannot be completely cleaned by combing, but must be put through a carbonizing process which greatly increases the cost of cleaning them."

"Feed racks so constructed as to keep chaff from getting into the neck wools, and care in handling the hay and other roughage so that it does not drop onto the backs of the sheep, will eliminate much of the seedy and chaffy wool. Allowing sheep to run to hay racks or straw stacks cuts down the cost of the labor of feeding, but it also causes a considerable waste of feed and lowers the grade of the wool, especially when the sheep are allowed to run to stacks of timothy hay."

"Method of shearing is another thing which influences the grade of the wool. Wool from sheep sheared immediately after a rain often molds or rots. Give the sheep time to dry off before shearing. After shearing lay the fleece flesh side down, turn in the britch, belly, and neck parts until the better side and shoulder wools are on top, then roll the fleece into a neat package. Tie it securely but not too tight. Usually two strands of twine each way will be enough to hold the fleece and yet not permit it to lose its loftiness."

"Tie the fleece with paper twine or polished jute twine. Sisal or old fashioned wool twine should never be used, since the vegetable fibers from such twine mix with the wool and greatly lower its value. They will not take a dye and since they cannot be detected in the wool until it is made into finished goods, they must be removed either by hand or by carbonizing—both of them expensive processes."

"This year, for the first time, the Wool Trades Association is backing a concerted movement to penalize all wools tied with other than paper or polished jute twine, and the association will inflict a substantial price penalty on all wool not tied with the approved twines."

NAME FOUR OHIO 4-H CLUB MEMBERS FOR ENCAMPMENT

COLUMBUS, O.—From among more than 36,000 members of boys' and girls' 4-H clubs in Ohio, four have been selected to represent the state at the annual national 4-H club encampment to be held in Washington, D. C., in June.

The four Ohio club members are: Carrie Butcher of Powell, Delaware-co.; Helen Culp, of Bellefontaine, Logan-co.; Arthur Dreyer, of Ashtabula, Ashtabula-co.; and Lawrence Roush, of Letart Falls, Meigs-co. They were selected by a state committee of officials of the boys' and girls' club department of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Ohio State University here, and their expenses will be borne by state or county agencies interested in furthering 4-H club work.

The four Ohio delegates were chosen not through any contest, but on a basis of their general ability and qualifications and records in their club projects, as well as their indicated ability to bring back from the national camp information for the betterment of their fellow club members in the state. The camp will be pitched on the grounds of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington under the shadow of the Washington monument. Its program will include recreation, sight seeing, and instruction in 4-H club lore. Each state and territory is entitled to send four delegates to the national camp.

This year's delegation from Ohio has had from four to seven years' experience in 4-H club work. All members have served as officers or leaders, as well as members, of the clubs to which they have belonged, and all of them propose to continue in club work as leaders. Three of them plan to attend the College of Agriculture of the Ohio State University here, next year.

MANY SUBMIT SONG CHOICE

Quest of State Department of Education Proves Extremely Popular.

COLUMBUS, O.,—The quest of the State Department of Education for a state song is proving extremely popular. Numerous songs have been submitted by people from all types of occupations and professions.
Director of Education, J. I. Chilton, has just announced that a prize of $500.00 will be given to the person who writes the poem that best deals with the beauty, grandeur, and achievements of the Buckeye state. A song, however, to receive the recognition of Ohio's state song must be of good worth and receive full approval of the judges. The right to reject any or all poems submitted is reserved, if the songs submitted are below standard.
The final date for submitting the lyrics is May 1, 1930. After this, the poem will be set to music by competent composers and will then be broadcast to all parts of the United States. Boys and girls in the schools of Ohio will be afforded the privilege of learning this song and some of them will be selected to take part in that pageant of 10,000 children, who will entertain the educators from all over the United States on July 4, the final day of the meeting of the National Education Association.
Miss Edith M. Keller, State Supervisor of Music, Department of Education, State House, Columbus, Ohio, who is directly in charge of the song contest, has issued simple rules and regulations to all high schools and to various organizations or individuals interested in the same.
The poem should be at least two stanzas in length and lend itself to musical setting. The judges selected will be recognized authorities in the field of literature and music.

When Pilots Know Their Planes
Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith is the Australian aviator who was in charge of the airplane in which three men flew across the Pacific in 1928. He is now director of an air line in Australia.
Recently one of the company's triple-motored planes made a forced landing in a forest clearing in New South Wales. It looked as if the plane could not possibly be taken out without dismantling it. Kingsford-Smith had another plan. He repaired the damaged undercarriage of the plane first. Then he tied the plane's tail to a tree and set the engines going full speed. The machine lifted from the ground. Instantly a helper cut the rope and the plane flashed away like a rocket.
It wasn't altogether a smooth get-away. The plane bucked vigorously and barely cleared the tree tops. The fabric was torn from its under side by boughs. Nevertheless, the pilot got his machine out and safely to the airfield.
Airplane designers are striving to perfect a plane which will rise vertically from the ground, and some day they will succeed. Kingsford-Smith made an ordinary plane do almost that thing, through a daring stunt. It was a best demonstration of skill, courage and thorough understanding of his machine.

PROBATION AND REFORM
A man in Davenport, Ia., convicted on a charge of violating the federal Motor Vehicle Law, was given choice between a two-year prison term or five years of probation under the following conditions:
"That he pay the $1,000 fine imposed by the Court within 10 days.
"That he remain always in profitable and gainful employment.
"That he not own an automobile, possess one or operate one directly or indirectly.
"That he not ride in an automobile within more than a radius of 50 miles and that only in the day time and directly in connection with his employment.
"That he have no joy rides in automobiles or airplanes.
"That he visit his father in Chicago once a month for not more than five days, but at the expiration of the visit report to the probation officer in the form of a sworn affidavit the places visited, theater, moving picture houses, and so forth.
"That he not drink intoxicating liquor.
"That he not visit places of gambling or any other establishment where intoxicating liquor is kept or sold.
In pronouncing these conditions the judge made it quite plain that violation of any one of them in letter or in spirit, would mean immediate incarceration. It is rather one about remaining in profitable employment, but the accused preferred it to prison. Court and probation officer may find they have a real job on their hands helping the probationer carry out his pledge, but if it works it should mean real reform.
German politicians find the Hindenburg line as hard to smash as the Allies did during the war.

"MASTER OF MONEY"
BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XLIV.
"LOOK up that ridge," he told her. "That's where they showed themselves. They're riding away now to come through the track we made to get into the camp from that end—that's where I intended to have the machine-guns. There's another defile at the west. I tell you, in this position we could hold off a force—oh, what's the good of talking! I bet on their not coming so soon."
"Suppose Maurois sent them," suggested Shirley. "He knows a lot of them. He may have passed the word."
"That's a bit of an idea," he agreed. "We'll see. Here they come."
As he spoke she saw the leader come at a trot round the bend, followed by his men.
"What will they do with us, Alan?"
"I don't know. They may come to terms—they may cut our throats."
The comitadjis were riding through the camp, making straight for Alan's shack.
"They're going to talk or they would have shot at us by now," he told her. "Everything depends on how the talk goes."
The men, in every description of dress from Greek to shabby European, now filled the clearing in front of the shack and were dismounting.
"Just what I thought," said Alan. "It's sheer poverty that drives them into this game for the most part. Look at those horses—and the men themselves look as if they were starving."
He had spoken within hearing of the leader, who was advancing upon them.
"You're quite right there, Mr. Brennavay," said the leader. "But we shan't be so poor by the time we've done with you."
"And where the devil did you pick up English?" asked Alan with a laugh.
"With the Army," said the man. "I had six caiques during the war—used to be up at headquarters every day."
The men, exhausted by their riding through the night, had tethered their horses and were squatting down, some of them smoking.
"Well, now, what do you think you're going to get out of this?" Alan demanded. "I've got about a thousand francs here. I suppose you've got fifty men with you, haven't you? That works out at twenty francs apiece, assuming you can get them."
"That's worth having on no account," said the leader. "But you're a rich man, Mr. Brennavay. You can give a check on the Ottoman bank."
In three years of daily dealing with officers at headquarters, the man of affairs had a certain respect for the manner which Alan was going to go on. Shirley saw him glance critically at the member of the gang.
"What's your name?" he rapped out.
"Andreas Abramov," said the man.
"Well, Abramov, you seem to have dealt with my countrymen and you know we aren't quite fools. If I buy you off with a check, there's nothing to prevent your coming here tomorrow for another."

"I've got the men here, Mr. Brennavay. That's what they're here for—they've got to have something or I can't get them away."
"I'm not going to pay you to go—but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll pay you to stay," said Alan. "You've earned regular money before now and you know it works out much better than this bandit game. I'm paying my gang ten francs a day and all their food—as much food as they can eat. I'll pay your fellows just the same for working with the gang—and I'll give them another ten francs a day to stay by with their rifles and keep off any other bands of comitadjis that turn up. You'll draw double that as leader, and there will be a bonus on the amount of work done, and special arrangements if there's any fighting."
"If they don't?" she suggested.
"If they don't I shall give them their terms—because you're here," he answered savagely.
For half an hour they waited, then the leader came towards the shack.
"It's no good, Mr. Brennavay," he said apologetically.
"Don't be a fool, Abramov," said Alan sharply. "What good would it do you to kill us? You'll get that thousand francs and no more—that's only one day's money."
"That's all right, sir," cut in Abramov. "But your offer wouldn't last more than a week. There's Stephanos—he's got a hundred men—more than that, maybe—and they're all well armed. And he'll be along here as soon as he's assembled—call it a week."
For a moment Alan was silent, and then:
"Did you know I've got machine guns here," Abramov?
Abramov gasped with astonishment at the offer.
"Just get this at the back of your head," said Alan impressively. "During the war you fellows couldn't do this job. Most of you were carrying good weapons with the English Army, and having the best time of your lives. Well, here's a chance to get the same again. You can get properly here—and I can give you all employment—year after year. I'll build houses for you and you can make your own money and there will always be plenty of pay and plenty of food. Just get and talk it over with your friends. Come along, Shirley, we'll leave them."
She went back into the shack and he followed her. He dropped into a chair and lit a cigarette. "Alan, that was splendid," he exclaimed. "Do you think they'll accept?"
"I don't know," he answered. "It depends on what kind of fellows they have. We've got that leader all right. Judging by the look of

Theatres
AT THE CLIFTONA
Those individuals who enjoyed the two popular mystery-film successes, "Unholy Night" and "The Thirteenth Chair," have a treat in store for them when "The Bishop Murder Case" comes to the Cliftona Theatre Wednesday with such prominent featured players as Basil Rathbone, Leila Hyams, Roland Young, Alec E. Francis, and a number of others.
The new all-talking murder drama, adapted by Lenore J. Coffey from the S. S. Van Dine best seller, and filmed under the joint direction of Nick Grinde and David Burton is reputed to be by far the best all-around mystery-film as yet to come out of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Culver City.
Advance reports indicate that particular care was taken to give the new thriller a number of original twists and sequences which keep the audience on its toes while confusing it as to the identity of the real murderer.
The plot concerns a series of murders done by a person who leaves a black chess bishop beside each victim and sends jeering notes in "Mother Goose" rhymes to his pursuers, notably, Philo Vance, the popular detective of the Van Dine tales.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—
Spring Fever—
Usually Due to Continuing the Heavy Winter Diet
Says Dr. Copeland
"When the bounds of Spring are on Winter's traces
The mother of months in meadow or plain
Fills the shadows and windy places
With lip of leaves and ripple of rain."
By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.
THE above quotation is Swinburne's. Do not let his words give you the feeling of Spring? This is the season to get out "in meadow or plain." No matter where you go—in the woods, in the parks, or anywhere in the great out-of-doors. Do this for your health.
When the first warm days of Spring appear, the balmy air beckons you forth. This is a time to catch upon the health score. Do you feel listless, without ambition? Do you feel that nothing in the world can possibly "pep you"? Perhaps you have had a hard Winter. It may be that the members of your family have had sickness. Well, now it is all over, and Spring is at hand! There is something about the smelly, delightful days of Spring that gives you life.
This is the time to take heed of all Nature. The mountainsides burst forth in the last green of the year. In the country, or in the parks, there is the smell of the earth, the rushing of streams, the last melting spots of snow.
Did you ever visit the mountains at this season? One such day comes to my mind—a day in my own home mountains in April. The season was a little late. After days of sparkling cold, but bright sunshine, the first warm day appeared. Rivulets of water from melting snow, gave way to rushing streams. The trees of the mountainsides burst forth in a day, almost, in pastel shades of green. I feel sorry for one who has never seen the mountains in Spring. This is the time of the year to take stock of your health.
Be out-of-doors all you possibly can. Make your walks sprightly and gay. If you are a city dweller, be out on the avenue or get out into the parks in the sunshine.
How the babies enjoy these Spring days in the park! Growings and children mingle with the crowds in the fresh air and sun. We lack sunshine so much in Winter that there is the greater need now.
Perhaps you will arrange to go on that fishing trip you have thought of for so long. A day, or a week-end away in the country can do much to add to your store of health. Your outlook on life will be changed. Everybody who can should enjoy every moment possible out-of-doors.
After the Winter months of hard work or strenuous social engagements, when most persons have held to a rather heavy diet, a change to lighter foods should be made at this season. Not so much food is needed in the warmer months. Eat plenty of the leafy vegetables and fresh fruits.
Every chance for good health is yours if you will use intelligent care. Make it a rule in these few months to build for health, to build up reserve energy, and have all the relaxation and recreation possible. Look out for your teeth, have a physical examination to see if you are fit, and then enjoy life!

MCDONALD MAY SAVE PARLEY
LONDON, March 20. Fanning the spark of life breathed into the London Naval Conference, the re-statement of America's willingness to enter a consultative pact provided no military guarantees are involved, Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald today was reported ready to grant France at least some measure of the security she desires.
Determined to keep the conference alive in order to maintain the prestige of his labor government, Premier MacDonald, it is understood, is prepared to grant some political concessions to France. Just what they will be is a matter for conjecture at the moment.
